President's Address Delivered At Mt. Vernon by Wallace CITED BY PRESIDENT

MT. VERNON, Nov. 17.—(AP)
Text of the address prepared by President Roosevelt for delivery at the meeting of the presidents of the land grant colleges and universities and delivered by Secretary Wallace in the absence of the President:

Today, here at Mount Vernon, we are paying tribute to George Washington—not as the general who won the war for independence, not as the statesman who welded the former colonies into one strong nation, but as the outstanding farmer and farm leader standing farmer and farm leader of his time.

When the call of duty came, Washington was glad to give himself for years on end to the service of his country; yet his heart turned always homeward toward his beloved plantation. While he was leading the American army in the Revolutionary War, he could seldom visit his home. But during the years he was president, he returned to it as often as he could from the capital at New York. Over a specific 40 as he could from the capital at New York. Over a span of 40 years, from 1759 until his death in 1799, the farm at Mount Vernon was the center of his in-

For him, farming was both a business and a hobby. To farming as a business he brought the talents of a great executive. To farming as a hobby he brought the adventurous mind of a pio-

METHODS OF MANAGEMENT INSPIRATION TO FARMERS

His 8,000-acre estate at Mount Vernon was divided into five separate units. His methods of management and his careful keening of accounts are an inspiration to farmers of the present. He knew how to merchan-dise his products so as to get a premium price—for example, the wheat he shipped under his spe-cial brand to the West Indies was rated as the best to be had.

But more striking was the pioneering he did in the arts of husbandry. He was not satisfied to do things as they always had been done. When he found that one-crop tobacco farming was wearing out his land, he cut down his output of tobacco from 35,000 to 5,000 pounds and replaced it with wheat, English clover and a variety of other crops.

He took measures to stop gullying and erosion. He continually tried to improve his strains of livestock and from his sheep got more than twice as much wool per fleece as his neighbors got from theirs. He made a tour through the Caro-linas to exhibit one of his mules so as to popularize the use of mules. He tried out a threshing machine invented in Scotland. CONSULTED OTHERS

ON BETTER FARMING He was constantly exchanging ideas by mail with others in this and foreign countries who were interested in better farming. To what extent he foresaw the evolution that would take place in agriculture in the next century and a half, we do not know. But we do know that he himself sold some of his own farm products in interstate and foreign com-

We know that he was active in the building of canals that would connect the seaboard with the great regions to the west. He great regions to the west. He must have sensed that the development of transportation, together with more productive farming methods, would bring a sweeping change. He must have sensed that farm workers would be released to engage in the manufacture and distribution of the Bank of Canton, said the Patman bill now pending before congress calls for a "centralization" of power.

He declared the "ultimate effect of the bill, if passed, will be to unify the banking system, abolish state autonomy in banking and ufacture and distribution of many useful things and thus raise the standard of living for all.

Sensing this, it was natural that he should urge congress to create a national board to promote the interests of agriculture. In his eighth annual message to congress he said:

HE NAMED AGRICULTURE OF PRIMARY IMPORTANCE

"It will not be doubted that with reference either to individual or national welfare agriculture is of primary importance. In proportion as nations advance in population and other cfrcumstances of maturity this truth be comes more apparent, and rend-ers the cultivation of the soil more and more an object of pub lic patronage. Institutions for promoting it grow up, supported by the public purse; and to what object can it be dedicated with greater propriety?"

George Washington's interest in agriculture was matched in later years by that of Thomas Jefferson. But not until 1839, when congress appropriated $1,000 for the patent office to use in the aid of agriculture, was Washington's proposal carried out. Then in the years that followed, as farmers generally felt the need for improving their methods of production, the movement spread.

At last, under the leadership of Abraham Lincoln in 1862, more than a half century after George Washington's message, that move-ment came to fruition. Laws were passed by congress estab-lishing the United States Department of Agriculture and provid-ing grants of land to aid in estab-lishing state colleges of agricul-ture. Now, this week, the 75th anniversary of the founding of these great institutions is being celebrated at the nation's capital.

HE COULD NOT FORESEE George Washington's own words, which I have just quoted, show that he considered agricul-tural production even in his time to be much more than a local matter. Yet many changes were destined to come that he could not possibly foresee.

He could not foresee that a protective tariff policy, adopted in the beginning to foster infant industries, would put agriculture at a permanent disadvantage. He could not foresee that mortgages on farm land would become an important part of a highly complex financial system and would be closely linked to the life insurance policies of millions of surance policies of millions of people in cities and towns. He could not foresee that fixed charges such as taxes, interest and freight rates would push thousands of farmers into bankruptcy whenever the prices of farm commodities collapsed.

He could not foresee that abundant production, instead of lifting the farmer's standard of living, would sometimes crush the farmer under the weight of an unmarketable surplus. He could not foresee the development of not foresee the development of the great corporations and labor unions, and how essential it would be for farmers to unite. He could not foresee that farm buy-ing power would be essential to keep city factories running. He could not foresee the intricate web of economic ties that, ex-tending across state boundaries tending across state boundaries, would almost completely sub-merge the local phases of agricultural production and make more than ever a matter of vital GEORGE WASHINGTON,

FIRST "MASTER FARMER"

Knowing what we do of George Washington's belief in a national washington's belief in a national government strong enough to cope with the problems of his time, and his perception of the importance of agriculture as the foundation of our national life, we can be sure that if he had lived took by would have been been as the sure of the control of the sure of the control of the contr ed today he would have acted boldly to keep agriculture from boldly to keep agriculture from going down to ruin.

We can be sure that he would not have denied to agriculture advantages which government has so freely granted to industry. All his actions indicate that he would have supported farmers in programs of the type they have adopted. Just as he himself shifted from one-crop tobacco shifted from one-crop tobacco production to a balanced type of farming in order to save his soil, it seems almost certain that he would have favored government action to aid farmers as a group to bring their farming operations into balance.

And so, as we pay tribute to George Washington, the first "master farmer," let us resolve that we will be worthy of his great example. Let us resolve that as a nation we will not neglect the fortility of was soiler. lect the fertility of our soil or the integrity of our farm homes. Let us resolve that, now and al-ways, the great art of husbandry shall have its rightful place in our American life.

President Roosevelt expressed belief today that if George Washington had lived in the twentieth century, he would have "acted boldly to keep agriculture from going down to ruin."

Obviously continuing his campaign for a reversal of the suppreme court's 1936 decision against federal regulation and control of farm production, Roosevelt said:

ATLANTA, GA., NOVEMBER 18, 1937.

WHERE GEORGIA LAGS

Georgia produces, per acre, for most of the standard farm crops, less than any other of the great agricultural states. Georgia farm workers raise, per man, less of these crops than the workers in any other state.

Dean Paul W. Chapman, of the University of Georgia College of Agriculture, makes these alarming revelations in a report prepared as one project of the citizens' fact-finding movement in which 14 leading organizations of the state are co-operating.

The condition exposed by Dean Chapman goes to the root of the state's economic troubles. While the agricultural population is thus lagging behind the procession of other states, it is inevitable that education, health, industry, commerce and all other activities shall suffer. A people thus held to small financial returns cannot provide the financial flow necessary both for the support of public and governmental activities and for a prosperous state of

There are many reasons for this condition, some of which are self-evident in other statistics of Dean Chapman's report. He tells, for instance, that Georgia had more farmers last year who had been on their land for only one year than any other state. Farm success, more than any other, depends not only upon lifelong operation of home acres, but upbuilding of soil wealth through generation after generation. The finest farm homes in the nation are in New England and Virginia, where the same lands and homes have been owned by the same families for many generations.

In Georgia, in 1935, there were 164,331 croppers and other tenant farmers, compared to 75.857 farm owners and 9,340 part owners.

Georgia leads all states in production of five crops, sweet potatoes, peanuts, watermelons, pecans and pimiento peppers, yet the yield per acre, for the 10-year period of 1922-32, was the lowest for any state in the Union.

Georgia has a greater percentage of soileroded acres than any other state. It costs more, on the average, to produce a pound of cotton in Georgia than in any other state.

Although Georgia's per capita consumption of milk and butter is only about half the average for the nation as a whole, this state produces only about 35 per cent of the dairy prod-

Georgia produces less than 1 per cent of the mules used on its farms. Georgia ranks third in farm population, but thirty-ninth in income per farm.

The average annual per capita farm income of the state is $147, compared with a total per capita income, for the entire population of the state, of $343.

These facts given in Dean Chapman's report are startling and alarming. Yet it is necessary, if Georgia is to re-establish herself as a leader among the states, that they be known and understood by every citizen of the state.

The remedy cannot be applied immediately. It will take years of patient endeavor and sac-

The only possible cure is rebuilding. A twofold rebuilding. A rebuilding of fertility in the soil-eroded and worn-out acres and a rebuilding of modern farming ability in the coming generations. The latter program is fortunately, well under way through the College of Agriculture itself, through the state's other institutions of agricultural education, through the 4-H clubs, the Master Farmers' movement, through the Future Farmers of America and through the agricultural vocational training given in the state's high schools.

SHREWD, THESE JAPANESE

Japanese diplomatic acumen is strikingly displayed in the retort they make to the accusations voiced against them by the Brussels conference. The response is, properly speaking, not a "reply" but a "retort."

Charged with full blame for the undeclared war in China, Japan's diplomats point their own finger of accusation at the nine-power signatories to the Chinese territorial integrity pact and cry that their accusers do not themselves come into court with clean hands.

Why? Because those accusers, forsooth, have not paid their war debts to the United States.

It is a statement worded, unquestionably, in a deliberate effort to win popular sympathy for Japan in the United States, and weaken the public support of this nation for the Brussels conferees.

A few officials of the State Department and a handful of experts on international finance know that the real reason the war debts have not been paid is the high tariff walls against international commerce erected by the United States.

But to the man on the street any unpaid and overdue debt, whether it be between governments or between nations, is the same as a debt between individuals. It is not paid and that is all he understands. He considers the debtor a wilful defaulter.

Japan shrewdly plays upon this popular misconception and gains, thereby, a new measure of condonance from the man in the street in America.

Thus it is evident that Japan's primary objective in diplomacy, at the present time, at least, is to avoid any clash with the United States.

Which should lift the worst apprehensions of those jingoistic alarmists who are constantly picturing a yellow-tinged peril to this country. lurking gloweringly across the Pacific.

EDEN'S SAD PLIGHT.

Anthony Eden, but recently the darling of the gods of European diplomacy, has fallen to so low an estate there are none so poor to do him reverence. At any rate, the old men of Chamberlain's cabinet show him little respect. While he was holding forth at the Brussels conference last week, they persuaded the prime minister to approve their idea of sending Lord Halifax to talk with Hitler. This was in effect a direct reversal of the policy to which the foreign office is committed.

The furore caused by this affront to Eden has focused the attention of observers on Eden's personal plight. He is said to have been on the verge of resigning twice last week. He has been similarly minded on several other occasions. One gathers that a sense of duty has proved more compelling in his case than resentment aroused by the cavalier tactics of his cabinet

Eden has all along been the victim of the older men with whom he is associated. He has been too youthful and idealistic to suit them. He is a constant reminder of their own mistakes. He became foreign minister in 1935, after Sir Samuel Hoare had joined Laval in the colossal blunder of seeking to confirm Mussolini's Ethiopian adventure. Ever since, he has had the envy and bitterness of Hoare, Sir John Simon and others, who are eager to step into Chamberlain's shoes and who already have taken charge of his ears.

For when Chamberlain agreed to send Halifax, he was not, it seems, acting so much on his own behalf as at the urging of the elder statesmen, who have their own score to settle with Eden. Chamberlain is far from being the vigorous premier the hour calls for. He, too, is old, and he is not strong, and he is constantly being pushed into positions which please his cronies rather than strengthen his hold upon the admiration of Englishmen. Meanwhile, the way in which, in this affair. history is repeating itself is of no little interest. In 1912, Haldane, a pronounced Germanophile, was sent, instead of the then foreign minister, to soften the militant mood of the group in control at Berlin. Haldane failed, for reasons which need not be detailed. There is reason to think Halifax will do no better.

Those who have been dismayed by the weakness and uncertainty of recent British international policy can now better understand what is behind this endless shilly-shallying. The British government has been for years a house divided against itself. On the one hand, there was Eden, who was all for taking a high ground. On the other, there were the oldsters priding themselves upon being realists. It is a pity that at so crucial a moment in the life of mankind, British diplomacy should be so futile and timorous.

A clinic specializing in child behavior advises against toy soldiers, as they lead to a war psychology, and even to boy scout bugles.

BREAKDOWN AT BRUSSELS (From the Dallas Morning News.)

Impotence of the nine-power conference at Brussels to halt Japan's military aggression in China, assumed by most observers from the start, seems almost certain now that Italy has become an ally of Japan and Russia has left the con-ference in digust. Although Russia was not a signer of the nine-power treaty, she had been invited to the conference because of her impor-tant interests in the Far East.

In addition to resenting Italian balking at any Brussels maneuver that might hamper Japan, Russia is concerned over the new anti-Communist pact that Germany, Italy and Japan have aimed at her. The abrupt return of Maxim Litvinoff from Brussels to Moscow may be followed by a Soviet defense council to seek measures to counteract the unfriendly ring the Fascist powers appear to be drawing around Russia. While the Brussels conference probably will make some formal gesture in favor of peace in the Far East, there is scant hope for any action that will deter Japan from her present course. Instead, it appears to have hastened the Fascist powers into an alliance that may have secret military clauses that will endanger world peace. Yet the Brussels meeting was a necessary first step in seeking peace in China, and there still is hope that it will be followed by more vigorous efforts

Behind Washington Headlines

By H. R. BAUKHAGE. "GREEKS BEARING GIFTS" WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 .- The

aviation industry—or a representative portion of it—took the report of the Maritime Commission on "aircraft and the merchant marine" on the chin. They were officially speechless, but not because the report took their breath

What they feared, as suggested in this column last month, true. The Maritime Commission approached them, bearing gifts.
They are silent officially on the subject, but, when and if a generous congress hands them a subsidy, as the report suggests, they are going to reply, "No, thanks."

Unless the flying weather changes between now and then, this is about what representative spokesmen of the industry will say:

"We don't need a subsidy. New lines may. Let them take it, but we're afraid of getting governmental red-tape into the feed-

'Foreign competition doesn't bother us because, while there may still be a 'freedom of the seas,' there isn't much 'freedom of the air.'
Any ship under a foreign flag can steam into New York harbor.
"This is not true of planes. Only foreign nations which permit our planes to land on their shores receive reciprocal rights here.

"But foreign nations (even sister democracies) aren't crazy about having any foreigners flying high, wide and handsome over their territory which every now and then contains a few secret fortifi-cations as well as babbling brooks, landing fields, meadows and pastures green.'

That is why, aside from the fact that they don't want to be put under the commission, or the Department of Commerce, or the post-office, or anywhere but the Interstate Commerce Commission, that airplane people report low visibility when they look for the merits of the report.

Mr. Kennedy himself says that "It seems fairly evident that the volume of passenger, mail and express traffic available to aircraft is ample in the trans-Atlantic field, for example, to create income necessary to eventual profitable operation" and that large subsidies wouldn't be required, except on other routes "where the traffic

INDUSTRY FEARS LOENING The industry, if congress asks it, will have something further to say, namely, that help isn't needed in the construction field either, as it is in the shipbuilding industry. It will assert that Americans can build planes cheaper than Europeans can.

Of course, there is another reason why the flying business gets a little airsick when it leafs the report. It is somewhat afraid of Grover Loening, "pioneer aviation authority" and aeronautical adviser to the commission, who, formely associated with Pan-American Airways, chose to part with them. It is afraid he doesn't like some of the airways of the present aviation world.

FARM BILL FACES CHANGES "The Pope-McGill farm bill will be the base of the measure the committee will draw up," said Senator "Cotton Ed" Smith, back from Dixie with a touch of fire in his eye, "but, when we finally get through with it, the authors will hardly recognize it." That is a fair sample of how nearly the present session is ready to go about the work it was haled back from home to do.

Senator Smith is against all compulsory control, thinks the su-reme court won't swallow it, and complains that Secretary Wallace has hung too many restrictions on the cotton loans.

But don't think that "Cotton Ed" is entirely destructive. He has a brand-new, red-hot contribution to offer for the consideration of governmental cotton experts. He thinks their present data world supply of cotton are unreliable and the means of collecting them is inadequate. In short, he thinks there ought to be a law, and he's going to introduce one.

Senator Smith's bill would create a commission authorized to visit all foreign countries in which cotton is produced or consumed. The commission would with its technical experts, take all the time needed to get the facts, presumably even longer than it will take to get a cotton control bill through congress.

"70-CAR" BILL IS SIDETRACKED There may be a lot of the present session which will eventually get by. But one bill that had plenty of steam behind it once is probably sidetracked forever. This measure may not have meant much to you, but a lot would have been said about higher living cost if it had not been dropped. It's the famous "70-car" bill, and the story behind its demise

This measure, you recall, was sponsored by Senator McCarran and proposed to limit freight trains to 70 cars. It was supposed to be a safety measure. It caused a loud wail on the part of the railroads. The United States Chamber of Commerce put up a valiant battle against it. They said it would mean, not more safety, but less, and greater shipping costs. It was, however, backed by rail-

Now it appears that labor isn't as interested in "safety" as it is Now it appears that have been seen as the pay envelope.

At least when the railroads, after the long-drawn-out arbitration in Chicago, finally agreed to an increase in the base pay of the men, the railroad brotherhoods agreed that they would let the "70-car bill" rest, if not rust, on the rails.

NEW YORK-For weeks it has been known that a bitter struggle was raging behind the scenes in Germany between General Goering and Herr Dr. Schacht. Dr. Schacht, head of the Reichsbank and until recently also Minister of Economic Affairs, wanted to put the brakes on the Reich's fantastic armament campaign because of the enormous drain on the country's financial resources involved in the purchase of raw materials abroad. Goering, on the other hand, is of the opinion that the Reich is not arming fast enough yet and that his famous four-year plan "for cannons, tanks and bombing planes but no butter," should be speeded to completion in two years. It may be coincidental, but it is highly significant, that upon learning of Goering's and coupled with it the certainty out of his position, the British government immediately took steps to come to an understanding with

World's Window If You Let Junior Sass You Once. You Invite Him to Do It Again

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

Every school seems to have at least one sadistic bully who enjoys the exercise of power as a cat does. He is instinctively shrewd enough not to trouble those who would fight back, but woe to the boy who reveals fear or weakness.

Having found such a prospective victim, the bully does not destroy him all at once or even frighten him enough to arouse the courage of desperation. He experiments and feels his way.

Today he merely glares at the weakling or perhaps calls him insulting names; tomorrow he pulls off his cap and throws his books into the gutter; thereafter, the number of his offenses is limited only by his imagination. He knows there is nothing to hinder him. same shrewd system, which seems to show an instinctive understanding of human nature, is used by the adult bully tain larger ends.

You have seen him, no doubt, in a training camp or in some gang of workers or in a group of office men. Almost invariably he progresses from bad to worse by degrees. On each occasion he knows just how far he can go in safety.

If that were not true, the bully alone would be to blame. Since it is true, the frightened or too-patient victim is equally at fault, for he deliberately invites his own ruin.

Anybody with ordinary good sense knows that a bully, meeting no resistance, will go farther. It is as inevitable as the sum of two plus two. Therefore, the one who offers no resistance invites the bully to go farther. He fairly bellows: "Hit me again!" And he gets what he asks for. The time to stop a bully is before he starts. When he makes his first offensive move, or even shows his evil intentions, he goes

The American railroads remain the outstanding transportation industry of the country-dependable-progressive -safe. Despite higher operating costs, increasing taxes and strict regulation, they are giving 50% faster freight service, have reduced loss and damage 80%, and are today hauling all kinds of freight-from sand to silk-at an average cost to the shipper of less than one cent per ton per mile. And although some higher rates have just been granted and others are being sought, if all are allowed the price of railroad transportation would still be cheaper than in recent years.

Freight rates on the L& N are down, too. In 1936 shippers over the L & N saved $28,000,000 in freight charges, compared with what they would have paid at the average rate of 1921.

Gil glared at him again, and continued glaring as the three left the room. Ronnie was getting al-together too high-handed. He had literally taken over all decisions and was acting like a guardian rather than a friend.

Gil said as much, when, later, they had seen Tennington out and satisfied themselves that Boorsma had left, bag and baggage.

"Tut, tut, is this ingratitude rearing its ugly head?" Ronnie shuddered. "I relieve you all of all responsibility and you complain."
"But, confound it, man, we haven't gotten any place," Gil pointed out. "The longer we dawpointed out. "The longer we dawdle, the more grief piles up. A small coin not often used in England is the farthing, or a quarter-penny. Another coin is the half-penny, or "ha-penny." A tiny silver piece worth three pence was formerly common, but is now almost out of circulation.

bronze three-penny coins were minted. They are almost as large as the silver shilling, but are not circular—they are 12-sided. On one side is the image of the new British King—George VI. I have obtained several of these three-penny coins at English banks, but have been given them in change only once or twice. People have been putting them aside as "curios" ever since the coronation, and they are not passing around very much.

Great Britain is one of the few modern countries which do not have the decimal system of money. It is hard for a person from abroad to figure the meaning of the coins.

Great Britain also clings to the old system of weights, with 16 ounces in a pound and 14 pounds in a stone. I have asked a number of English boys and girls how much they weighed, and have received answers like these: "Four stone, three," "Five stone, two pounds," and "Three stone, nine." When I asked, "How much in pounds" it took some time for an answer to be figured out.

Outside of English-speaking nations, it is common for people to end. That points, in my opinion, to the path which will lead us to

G. S. C. W. Will Get Handsome $100,000 Building EDUCATOR NAMED

Here is presented an architect's drawing of a $100,000 health and physical education building, construction of which will begin at the Georgia State College for Women in Milledgeville December 9. Chancellor S. V. Sanford, in announcing plans of the board of regents for the new structure, said it represents only a part of a plan of expansion designed to increase the effectiveness of the Georgia school system. It is expected to be completed in time for the opening of the fall term next year.

The long-distance romance beween two Atlanta sisters and two brothers in California will be climaxed in a double wedding Sunday when the sisters arrive in Los Angeles.

The sisters, the Misses Jewell Frances Davis, 20, and Julia Blanche Davis, 17, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Davis, of 712 Ashby street, S. W., will leave Terminal station at 3:40 o'clock this afternoon.

Grooms Brothers.

The grooms-to-be are Dwane L. Benedict, 22, a civil engineer, and his brother, Darrell S. Benedict, 19, an employe of a Los Angeles bank

The romances began two years ago last June when the Davis girls, with their mother, were on a western trip. Dwane met the girls on a train, and fell in love with Jewell. When he returned home, he told his brother about Jewell's younger sister. Wires Hum.

Photographs were exchanged correspondence was kept up and long-distance telephone wires hummed frequently. The double wedding will take place Sunday night, a few hours after the girls arrive in California. Mrs. Davis will accompany daughters on the trip to California, and her husband, a veteran Southern Railway employe, will join them at Christmas time. The Benedict brothers are from Iowa. The wedding will be sol-emnized at the home of an aunt, panels of chiffon and lace, it is now slightly colored with age. The off-the-shoulder neckline is particularly becoming to the piquant beauty of the titian-haired bride of tomorrow. She will also wear her mother's white kid slippers and a spray of orange blossoms worn by the first bride to don the dress.

The following evening, Nisbet Le Conte will tread the orange blossom trail to become the bride of James Grizzard. The vacious blonde bride-elect's mother, Mrs. James T. Williams, was before her marriage Lilliam King, and when she became the bride of the late Dr. Joseph Nisbet Le Conte she made a dainty figure wearing a model of old ivory brocade satin made with tight basque and long skirt and train, and trimmed with fragile rose point lace. Saturday evening's bride will present a charming likeness of her mother in the dress which has been re-fashioned according to the mode of the day. It will be made with deep rose point lace bertha and long tight sleeves, and will form a slight bolero effect in the back.

when, as Agnes Stuart Plummer,
the marked Dr. Rhodes in Gosh she married Dr. Rhodes in Gosh-en, Md. Ellen, who is petite and titian-haired, will don a Brussels lace gown posed over antique satin and fashioned along slim princess lines.

The refashioning of the gown was a wedding gift to the brideelect from an Atlanta seamstress, who has long been an admirer of the bride-elect. Another gift which touched Ellen deeply is a silver salad fork which was given her by an old colored janitor and his wife who formerly worked for the Rhodes family.

SALLY has just heard of one about-to-be-divorced couple who are paying the closest possible amount of attention to that age-old rule, "Possession is ninetenths of the law." It seems that the husband is even a little more wary in this particular instance than his wife for he persists in waiting for his wife's departure every day before he dares to

For the aforementioned reason these young people continue to live in the same house and, as they are invited the same places. the wife puts in her appearance first and the husband, after making sure that she has left, always appears a few moments later.

SALLY'S heart was gladdened when she heard that the benefit bridge party sponsored by the Young Matrons' Circle netted over $2,500. Those working so untiringly for the party's success should feel well repaid for their efforts. Tallulah Falls school, which will benefit from the affair, has every reason for enjoying a happy Thanksgiving this year. For the amount derive! from the party will go a long way toward educating worthy mountain boys and girls.
Incidentally, fate played one of

By Sally Forth. A CCORDING to Atlanta brides, the current fashion calls for the wearing of Mother's wedding gown on the day of all days. For at least a trio of prominent local belies who will become brides within a week will adhere to the charming custom. The gowns which they will don for their weddings were worn by their mothers more than two decades ago, but they have been carefully preserved in cedar chests amid an aroma of orange blossoms. Their 1937 appearance is a source of sentimental interest to the youthful daughter-brides who chose them in preference to new ones of their own.

The first of the trio is Margueryte Scott, who will become the bride of Glascock Reynolds tomorrow at the Sacred Heart church. Sally recently gave you a detailed description of the dress that was first worn by her mother, the former Nina Elmer, when she was mar-ried to Earl F. Scott in Biloxi, Miss. ## MY DAY

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Tuesday.—We slipped into Cleveland quietly yesterday by making the mistake of getting off at the wrong station and disappointing our hosts who were waiting for us at another station. Except for the fact that we caused them anxiety and spent an unnecessary length of time driving through the city streets, no real harm was done.

This morning I spent two hours and a half seeing some really thrilling things, three PWA slum clearance projects which really have people living in the houses. We just drove past two of them, but that was enough to get an idea of the architecture and planning and the general social life which will be possible.

The buildings usually are two-story small houses, or apartments running from three to five rooms. The rents vary from $18 to $30 per month. You may live in the more expensive group with a maximum income of $1.500

The National Youth Administration, too, is doing an exceptional guidance project with some posters, which ought to be in every office for they offer so many suggestions of possible vocations. In addition, they are having their work projects evaluated and are getting out the findings. This is going to be very useful to young

They have already found that even more important than acquiring a skill is the acquisition of work habits and character traits. These give a prospective employer the hope that he will not be wasting itme in giving training in the particular skill needed in his industry.

Finally, we visited a WPA domestic training center. They have set this project up with an advisory committee on household training. Mrs. William C. Mather, who is the chairman of this committee, is evidently deeply interested in the work and has discovered some of the things which many of us have discovered, namely, it is not enough to train a good employe, you must also have a good

Unfortunately, we have heard that in many places in the country some prefer to remain on relief rather than take household positions. Many women were indignant over that statement. Mrs. Mather has found, as many of us have found in other places, that a little further investigation sometimes brings out the fact that the positions offered to women on relief are not always desirable.

Sometimes there is bed and board and no pay, sometimes the munificent sum of $3 a week, out of which carfare and rent must have women to employ them who have a sense of fair play.

FRIENDLY COUNSEL

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Dear Miss Chatfield: This isn't going to be a love or marriage problem, which are apparently the most important problems in the world. My mother died when I was 11 and for seven years I have lived with a step-mother. She has always treated me as though I were her very own; has been much kinder to me than to my brother. In spite of this we don't get along well. If I wear my hair short she thinks it's too tight or short she thinks it's too tight or too big or too long or something. A few days ago she asked me to go with her to see a relative in the hospital and when I said I had a date she replied "You think more of the boys than you do of me." Since then she says I am how come, though I seed much boy-crazy though I spend much more time with my girl friends than with boys. Is she jealous or what is the trouble? How can I straighten her out? STEP-DAUGHTER.

Answer: If you will set about to assure and reassure your step-mother of your affection for her I believe you can solve your own problem. She hasn't any children of her own and she has transferred all her maternal affection to you. In return she wishes to know that you are devoted to her, dependent upon her, that you defer to her and delight to be with her.

She will lap up your expressions of love as a hungry cat laps up cream. Consult with her as to the length of your dresses, the way you do your hair. Discuss your boy friends with her and try to draw her into pleasant acquaintance with them.

Yet Helen used to be a regular "tongue-tie." Much worse than you. If she could blossom into a cl. arming talker by learning colorful, gracious phrases, surely you do your hair. Discuss your can.

None of which is to suggest that you should permit her to smother you, give up your girl pleasure to nurse her, break your dates in order to go with her to visit her sick relatives. Perhaps she is one of these possessive, jealous creatures who won't be completely satisfied with anything less than pre-empting your life of all interest but her. In this event you will have to watch your step, keep same time feed her hungry

After all, dear child, yours is a love problem—not romantic, but maternal love. In principle the two are much the same and when recognize this, I believe you will be able to find the solution CAROLINE CHATFIELD

Dear Miss Chatfield: His mother doesn't approve of his going with me and she is doing all in her power to break up our love affair. We don't live in the same town and his mother has a fine oppor-tunity to get in her dirty work. I wisualize Thanksgiv-than anything to give the room a real lift. This might be on a light I must say she is polite when she sees me, but I can tell that underneath there's a hard feeling. The boy friend says his mother has never made but one outspoken criticism of me and that's nothing much, but she has him down. He criticism of me and that's nothing much, but she has him down. At the end of this time the calf measurement had tapered down arguments against your greens.

At the end of this time the calf measurement had tapered down arguments against your greens.

Apropos of that, perhaps you'd slimming down, remember that it is a quick and easy way to reduce, held up by this opposition. where am I? ELLEN.

Answer: There's not much comfort in this Ellen, but the truth is that if the boy friend loved you as much as you love him, his mother's opposition to you wouldn't carry weight. When a boy knows a girl is anxious to go through with the ceremony and he isn't quite up to the point, he feels the necessity of putting up an alibi and if he has one made to order in his mother's oposition to his marriage, it is only natural that he should trot it out.

Lackey, Jacket Tackle, in Hospital With Reinfected Leg

see by the papers that Mr. Alfred Young, who is the gen eral chairman of the Georgia-Auburn Association at Columbus has announced all flask pockets and all flasks will be viewed with a suspicious eye in that city on Saturday when the football teams of the two institutions meet in their annual combat.

This is something of a shock, as a great many people carry two handkerchiefs in their hip, or flask pockets, and these cause a large bulge. Then, too, a great many innocent people carry containers of hot tea or chocolate or coffee to the game and imbibe these beverages at odd moments when the cold begins to penetrate too deeply. I hope Mr. Young and his committee do not intend to investigate these vacuum containers. Once they are opened the tea or chocolate or coffee loses much of its warmth and a spectator on reaching the game would open his container to find there only cold tea or chocolate and would be very properly incensed at Mr. Young's committee.

As a matter of fact, your correspondent, along with others, always takes a thermos bottle of coffee to the game to consume at the half. I have advised my Columbus attorney, Mr. Frank Foley, to obtain an injunction against Mr. Young's committee to prevent it from putting the suspicious eye or restraining hand on this coffee. If it reaches the game in a cold condition, we will obtain a court ruling of "Dulce est Desipere in Columbus always has a swell time at the game. They are nice people down there and most well-behaved and sportsmanlike. The games never were disorderly.

At any rate, there will be no need to leave your thermos bottles of coffee and chocolate at the hotel. Judge Foley will have an air-tight injunction against the committee by midnight Friday. Or earlier.

A GRAND GAME.

Mr. Young and his committee have done a grand job in Mr. Young and his committee have done a grand job in Columbus. They work without pay. They annually make the Baby 'Gators, occasion of the Georgia-Auburn game an event which thousands of people look forward to each year.

Columbus looks forward to the game. The merchants decorate windows. Crowds come down to see the parade of the rival bands. Streets are blocked off. The students and the visitors own the town. It is a oneday football Mardi Gras.

It is an occasion of house parties, breakfasts, and open house. Columbus is a city which still retains a certain charm. It is not too large and not too small. It enjoys life. And the annual game is one of the home-coming days when all roads lead to Columbus.

Mr. Young and his loyal, unselfish committee are to be congratulated on their job—it's up to standard. There are lots of seats left and Columbus is ready for you.

THE BATTLE OF POINTS.

Comparative scores mean but little, if anything, in this football world. There is, for instance, the Georgia-Auburn game at Columbus on Saturday. Early in the season Tulane and Auburn played to a score-

Georgia defeated Tulane 7 to 6 and is therefore that many points better than Auburn. Auburn defeated Georgia Tech 21 to 0. Therefore Georgia is 28 points better than Georgia Tech. Tulane lost to Alabama 9 to 6 and that makes, on the basis of comparative scores, Georgia just two points behind Alabama's Crimson Tide.

That sort of thing can be carried on to fantastic proportions. All of which reveals just how little scores mean in computing the relative strength of teams.

Based on the cold, hard facts, Auburn should win from

By FELTON GORDON.
ATHENS, Ga., Nov. 17.—The big classic with Tech may be a matter of only a few days, but Coach Harry Mehre and the Georgia Bulldogs have their entire at-tention focused on Auburn at

In short, the Bulldogs are going after both of the games in a big way. Preferably, they would rather have a victory over Tech. However, they do not intend taking a chance of sacrificing a possible triumph over Auburn by "pointing ahead" to the game in Atlanta with the Yellow Jackets. "We shall use all available men against the Tigers," Coach Mehre stated tonight. INJURIES RETURN.

Most of the boys who were question marks before the Tulane ame returned to scrimmage form today. They included Lew Young and Carroll Thomas. Otis Maffett, however, a victim of the Tulane game, was out with a sprained back. He has not drilled this week. Although Vassa Cate was in harness today, he is not expected to be up to full potentiality. Neither is Lumpkin. The real extent of his ankle injury will be determined

The scrimmage both offensively and defensively showed up the varsity as only "mediocre." Red Devils slashed large holes in the line on seevral occasions. The freshmen showed good holding power on defense. In fact, two of the four varsity scores came on pass plays.
THE LINEUP.

The lineup today consisted of the following: Knox Eldridge and Spec Towns, ends; Haygood and Davis, tackles; Johnson and Tins-

Soph Back Hurts Hand: Furlow Groomed for Tackle Post.

By JACK TROY.

Fate dealt the Tech football squad a couple of hard blows yesterday. Eston Lackey, regular tackle, was sent to the hospital during the morning because of a reinfected leg and Junius Page, a back, had 10 stitches taken in the thumb of his right hand as the result of an injury he sustained in opening a dormitory window Tues-day night.

Page struck the base of the win dow with the butt of his right hand and the glass broke, cutting his thumb deeply.

Lackey had trouble with the same leg earlier in the season. In fact, following the Kentucky game. And he spent several days in the hospital. He was running a temroshear. He was running a temperature yesterday.

Coach Alexander doubted that either Page or Lackey would be able to play against Florida Saturday. Page handles the ball considerably at his position and he all unable to use his right hand at all unable to use his right hand at all.

Coach Alex drilled L. D. Crockett, a reserve, in Page's halfback position yesterday and expects to use him in the 'Gator game.

Asked if he would shift any of the linemen to bridge the gap at tackles, Coach Alex responded that "we haven't anyone to shift. We can't take Morgan off end although we had thought of doing that."

Before the practice Coach Alex doubted that any more scrimmage would be held for fear of further depleting an already riddled squad.

But following a session of skeleton scrimmage, he told the boys to take a couple of laps to warm up and "we'll try something else."

That something else was another scrimmage on offense and defense. defense.

One of the most exciting games of football on the screen that I have yet seen has been staged by M-G-M for its motion picture, "Navy Blue and Gold." Any time Army and Navy meet there is always spirit and action of the highest type. I've seen this for many, many years, no matter what the field. The one football feature of this picture is that you'll forget you are in a theatre—looking at a picture. It takes you directly to the green turf where you can hear the clash of young bodies. Having made over 400,000 feet of motion picture scenes in sport I ought to have at least a faint idea of real action, of dramatic interest. "Navy Blue and Gold" meets every situation on a football field.

The football sequences in "Navy Blue and Gold" were supervised by Gil Kuhn, the able center of Southern California, one of the 1936 stars. In the line-up you will find a large number of Pacific Coast Conference players—they all had reputations on the field to protect and for this reason they had no deep respect for such motion picture stars as Robert Young, James Stewart and Tom Brown. These artists had to take it, rough and ready, but they took it—standing up—or on their necks. There was no quitting. Sam Wood, the director, was smart enough to let the players run things to suit themselves—and they decided to run amuck.

But it's not only football that makes "Navy Blue and Gold" such an exciting picture. Georgia by a margin of at least two touchdowns. Yet the Georgia people are hoping Auburn left too much in Baton Rouge last week to come back with another explosive attack. They will be there in large numbers, hoping the Georgia de-fense can meet the Auburn attack and toss it back. And then put together a touchdown and win. The football fan is a Neither Team Takes hopeful cuss.

THE FORTY-SECOND BATTLE.

This will be the 42d meeting of the two teams. They met first in 1892 and this year the Plainsmen have a chance to even the series. Georgia has won 19 games and lost 18. Four of the games resulted in ties but it is a tribute to the offenses of the past few years that not since 1914 has there been a tie game.

Only four years have gone by without a game. In 1917 and 1918 Georgia did not have a football team because of the war. There was no game scheduled for 1893 and in 1897 there was no game because of the tragic death of Georgia's Von Gammon in the Virginia game of that fall.

So, the game comes down to this week as one of the oldest rivalries in the south and one of the most honomable. always exciting.

MR. PAGE LETS IN THE AIR.

One of the strangest of football injuries was received on Tuesday night by Juno Page, the Tech halfback. Mr. Page finished his studies and began to get ready to retire. He raised the window, his hands slipped and went through the pane, cutting his hand and wrist so much so that ten stitches were required.

I am aware of the fact this was not a football injury but it is a habit of statisticians to list all injuries received by football players as football injuries. In the recent statistics a sandlot player on the way to the game fell off a truck and was severely hurt. It was listed as a football injury so Mr. Page must fit in with the statistics. He is a very valuable young man and will be missed.

Offensive work on both teams will have to be confined to the game, for after Monday and Tuesday's workouts were forced in-doors, Wednesday was given over to defensive work and today will consist of only light passing and punting drills.

PINEHURST, N. C., Nov. 17 .-(P)—Horton Smith and Jimmy Thomson tied today with Tony Manero and Mike Turnesa with scores of 132 in the 136-hole probest ball tournament, preliminary est ball tournament, prelimin to the mid-south open.

Both braces shot through stiff breezes for 68's to go with their 64's of yesterday.

Dick Metz and Frank Walsh, Chicagoans, added 68 to their opening 66 to take third place with 134.

Harry Cooper and Lawson Little, who set a best ball record of 63 yesterday, required a 72 today, which dropped them into a three-way tie for fourth place at 135 with Johnny Bulla, Chicago, and Sam Snead, Whi'e Sulphur

Chicago Grain Reaches Extreme Immediate Limit of 5 Cents.

CHICAGO GRAINS AND PROVISIONS

CHICAGO, Nov. 17 .- (AP)-Excited over indications of rapidly automotive steel buying, but indicated crops, wheat prices whirled upward five cents a bushel today, the furthest immediate limit al-

Forecasts pointed to another frost threatening Argentina to-night, the sixth frost in three weeks. Chicago wheat specialists said freezing temperatures men-purchase movements in wheat futures were estimates that 1,500,000 bushels of North American wheat had been bought today for export

What Stocks Did. Wed. 215 330 171

716 NEW YORK, Nov. 17 .- (P)-Caution ruled today's slow stock market session, which ended with fractional gains and losses about balanced.

In early trading leaders edged modestly forward, but many slip-ped in the final hour. Interest was manifestly lacking and trading desultory.

With hopes concentrated on Washington, Wall Street failed to find positive news to lend a trend to share prices. While prospects for legislative aid to business were regarded fairly bright, commitments were avoided. What news there was appeared mixed in its implications.

Iron Age saw possibilities of a future pickup in railroad and creased dividends to avert profits surtax payments, but it was generally conceded the total amount to be paid would be less than was disbursed last year.

Not since October 8 has the pace been so slow. Transactions totaled aced the most promising areas in 758,570 shares compared with 1,Argentina, and that a crop could not repeatedly experience freezing and not lose in bushel yields on a large scale.

Adding impetus to stampede 1215 issues, 330 declined and 171 purchase movements in wheat to were unchanged of the 716 traded.

Produce to Europe, and that an equal amount of United States corn had also been taken for overseas.

Following are the only classes of eggs offered for sale in Georgia under the new egg law as reported by the State Bureau of Markets:

Gains and Losses Equally Divided as Market Remains in Rut.

Daily Bond Averages. NEW YORK, Nov. 17 .- (A)-

The bond market remained in a rut today and closing prices showed about an equal division of gains and losses. United States government loans extended an advance, with gains ranging up 6-32 of a point. The few declines did not exceed 2-32 of a point. Foreign dollar issues advanced along a wide front. Domestic corporates failed to establish a definite trend. A few rail liens moved up a point or so.

Utilities and industrials were mixed. The Associated Press average 12% for 20 rails gained .1 of a point 101/2 to 74.2, while 10 utilities dipped a like amount to 93.2. Ten industrials stood at 98.5, up .3 of a Hint of a revival in the dormant new capital market was seen in a registration with the SEC of $10,000,000 of West Virginia Pulp & Paper Company first mortgage bonds, the first sizable issue in several weeks.

Foreign dollar loans were marked by an upswing in South American obligations. Argentine 4s advanced 1 1-2 to 85 and Brazil 6 1-2s gained 1 3-4 to 22 1-2.

Turnover totaled $6,504,450, face amount, compared with $7,243,275 Tuesday.

been particularly pessimistic it appeas that other groups may not have made full adjustment to their current rat of activity and profits.

E. A. PIERCE & CO.—Market—constantly under influence of unsatisfactor business news—remains within tradii range in anticipation of possible favorab legislative developments in Washington

COTTON OPINIONS.

COURTS & CO.—Absence of any worth while developments indicate very little prospect on any change in the immediate outlook.

BEER & CO.—With congress divided over crop control, farm legislation likely to be long drawn out with trading cotton markets prevailing and most of desirable cotton going into loans. Continue to favor buying cotton around current levels. FENNER & BEANE—Market appears without definite trend at the moment, but we still believe buying on the recessions ofters best opportunity for cessions offers best opportunity for profits. PIERCE & CO.—Market irregularity seems likely to continue with developments in pending farm legislation mouth immediate factor. HUBBARD BROS. & CO.—Volume of trading extremely light, as trade is waiting to see what takes place in Washington in reference to farm legislation, ington in reference to farm legislation.

GRAIN OPINIONS.

COURTS & CO.—Continued reports of frost damage in Argentina is changing the wheat picture and we believe purchase on good breaks advisable on the assumption that there will be a better export demand in the near future.

BEER & CO.—We have always found it difficult to make forecasts during weather markets, as sometimes news is exaggerated and we need only to recall what happened in this country last summer. However, the second frost in the Argentine has taken a further toll from the crop and a more bulliah sentiment is being created.

FENNER & BEANE—It would seem that market has turned quite definitely, but would be cautious following extreme bull news.

E. A. PIERCE & CO.—Market responded to fear increasing damage to Argentine crop due further frost reports and revival export demand.

COTTONSEED OIL OPINIONS.
HUBBARD BROS. & CO.—The market continues to be a trading affair, lacking new incentive to attract outside business, and trade observers are of the opinion that until such time as there is fresh news, the market will continue a trading affair.

On one occasion he was conducting a revival meeting at a church in the upper section of the state, and was denouncing sin and hypocrites in his usual vigorous manner. A liquor-selling church member took exception to what the minister had said. Waiting for the minister to come out the church, the man accosted him and not administered; but rather the fighting man was brought to his knees, and before the meeting was over was led to make full confession of his misdoings, with an appeal that the church forgive him. Jabesh Gilead Congratulates Us. Jabesh Gilead, our steadfast friend, hailed us from a distance of 100 yards to shout his congratulations. We were hustling around in a great burst of speed until our coat-tail swung out like Old Glory flapping in a 40-mile breeze, when he yelled for us to stop and wait. Uncle Jabesh wanted to congratulate us on our twin grandbabies, born last July 30. Uncle Jabe thought it sump-in' for a preacher to have twin grandbabies, and he expressed the hope that the appointing powers uld deal gently with us, in view of the advancing prices of rations

more than 195 men were moved at one conference, at an estimated cost of $20,000. Some men were moved 300 miles. Who pays all this moving money? It comes out of the pockets of the preachers.

There is no fund provided for the minister's moving expenses. He alone foots the bill. And moving today is cheaper than it was a few years ago. But you understand it is a pretty well-known saying that preachers have oodles of money saved from their salaries that average less than a thousand dollars a year. So why not call on the reverends to keep that money in circulation, and coughup for the enormous moving expenses and incidentals?
